

Says

What have we heard them say?
What can we imagine them saying?

Thinks

What are their wants, needs, hopes, and dreams?
What other thoughts might influence their behavior?

Feels

What are their fears, frustrations, and anxieties?
What other feelings might influence their behavior?

Does

What behavior have we observed?
What can we imagine them doing?

See an example

KAVIYA K

Some of us have an auditory processing disorder,which means that although we "heard" the person ,our processing deficits kept us from immediately understanding what was said.

Our thoughts tkreate our feelings and our feelings drive our behavior. Let's take a simple example. If i like being outside neaar water and enjoy swimming, the thoughts of going to a pool makes me feel happy. These thoughts and feelings are going to lead me to plan activities that include swimming

Sometimes it is simply a deley in processing other people may unconsciously ask "what"? as a way to garner a little extra time to respond.

The phrase " I heard someone saying" is correct and can be used in written English you can use this phrase to describe overhearing a conversation. For example, "I heard someone saying that the weather is supposed to be nice this weekend.

Simply being in the presat you others will normally affect our behavior you may do things when you are alone at home that you would not dream of doing in public.

Pyschologists call this process of behavior change as a result of being in the presence of others social facilitation.

Postures,movements, nonverbl and verbal behavior -all can be observed Watching people,seeing their behaviors, looking at their performance, is intersting for many reasons.

We all battle with fear. Fear of failling, looking like fools or not being loved for who we are. Fearof reliving something that has been or living something that might come. Fear of not being good enough, smart enough or courageous enough.

Behavioral observation is the systematic recording of behavior by an external osserver.

Better understand the chilld.Allows for documention of skills. Shows the child's communication style.see what their interactions with their peers are like.

In psychology, frustration is a common emotional response to oppositon, related to anfer, annoyance and disappointment .

An abnormal state like this, characterized by a feeling of being poweless and unable to cope with threatening events,typically imaginary, and by physical tension,as shown by sweating, trembling etc.